Book Making Competition

Official Guidelines & Rules

Organized by Indywood Talent Club (ITC)

1. About the Competition

NextGen is a national-level educational book making competition for schools, organized under the Indywood Talent Club (ITC). It encourages schools to transform conventional academic topics into updated, industry-integrated, career-oriented and future-ready learning books.

Participating schools are challenged to combine research, creativity and practical relevance to make learning more meaningful. Entries will be evaluated on depth of research, industry relevance, integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) and emerging technologies, career-guidance value, creativity and overall presentation.

NextGen celebrates innovation in educational content – encouraging schools to build resources that inspire learning, raise awareness of future careers and promote meaningful understanding.

2. Theme

Each book should update a conventional academic topic into an industry-integrated, AI-aware and career-oriented learning resource that helps students connect classroom knowledge with real-world application.

3. Eligibility

- Open nationwide to all recognized schools.
- Each school may submit a maximum of five (5) books.
- Participation may be individual or team-based.
- Every entry must have a designated Coordinating Teacher / Team Leader.
